Website Legal Originality & IP Statement

Use of Content: All text, illustrations, character identities, educational frameworks, and brand elements associated with Penguin Procession™ are protected intellectual property. No portion of this website may be copied, reproduced, republished, uploaded, posted, transmitted, or distributed in any form without prior written permission from Jeanne Fuller. Limited excerpts may be quoted for review or educational commentary provided proper attribution is included.

Derivative Works: Creation of derivative works—including adaptations, retellings, character reinterpretations, merchandise, or educational materials—requires explicit written authorization. Unauthorized derivative use is prohibited and may constitute infringement under U.S. copyright and trademark law.

Digital Assets: All digital assets displayed on this website, including logos, character art, book covers, promotional graphics, and downloadable materials, are owned exclusively by Jeanne Fuller. These assets may not be altered, redistributed, or used for commercial purposes without permission.

Work-for-Hire Illustration Notice: All illustrated elements within the Penguin Procession™ series were created under formal work-for-hire agreements. Full ownership of all artwork—including character designs, environmental art, and stylistic treatments—belongs solely to Jeanne Fuller. Illustrators do not retain rights to reuse, resell, or repurpose any artwork created for the series.

Copyright Registration Status: Each book in the Penguin Procession™ series is copyrighted individually once its story and illustrations are complete. Several titles currently hold text-only copyright registrations, with illustrated editions undergoing additional registration upon completion. Copyright protection applies to both published and unpublished works.

Trademark Notice: Penguin Procession™, The Painting Penguin™, and all related marks, logos, and brand identifiers are proprietary trademarks of Jeanne Fuller. Use of these marks without authorization is strictly prohibited.

Licensing & Permissions: Parties interested in licensing, adaptation, merchandise development, or educational use may submit inquiries through the designated contact channel. Licensing decisions are made on a case-by-case basis and require formal agreement.

Website Content Accuracy: All information presented on this website is provided in good faith. While efforts are made to ensure accuracy, Jeanne Fuller makes no warranties regarding completeness or currentness of posted content. Updates may occur without notice.

Contact for Permissions: For permissions, licensing inquiries, or rights-related questions, please use the official contact method provided on this website.